“ Met Curt in 1972, two young men from the deep south, both graduates of HBCU’s and fraternity brothers, both with strong family values. Though we had not previously met, we became close friends and remained so as we traversed our career paths. What I will always remember about Curt was his focus and commitment to his family and his job. Honesty, respect, and the ability to listen and provide feedback are traits that we will miss as we move forward. To Joyce and family, our condolences.

Even though I have known him for a short period of time, I can tell that he was a kind and influential person. The last time I saw him I mentioned him taking a family road trip in his new truck. We all laughed. He took the heavenly road trip by himself in style. His son always spoke highly of him. He left priceless memories I'm told.
