“ Hank, Kathy, and Jared have always felt like family to me. For a short period, during my adolescence, they opened their home to me when I didn't have a good one. They showed me a level of generosity and selflessness that you just don't find often anymore. In all of the years that I knew Hank, this never changed. He never hesitated to help you whether you asked for it or not. I still remember sitting in the garage talking with him and Jared about cars and everything else men talk about. Without me asking, Hank reached over and dug through his box of extra and scrap tools and put me together my first full set of wrenches, which I still use today. Unknown to him, little things like this have resonated through out my life. I learned alot about how to be a good person by being around Hank and his family. I will always love and admire them.

To Kathy and Jared: If there is ever anything I can do to help you while you find peace, please don't hesitate to ask. I love you both very much. -Brian “ Getting to know my uncle hank was probably the best thing I could have ever done. And it sucks that it took me so long to do it because to be honest he was so awesome to talk to. I learned so much about him in the little time we shared and I'm glad we were able to create a good relationship before he left. My favorite thing he told me which I will never forget was when I asked him if he could do anything right now what would he do, he answered by saying he would want to go gambling and win as much money as he could so he could leave it behind for his wife and son so they could have a good life. In that moment I could just see how big of a heart my uncle had. He told people that I was his angle sent from God and to tell you the truth hank is my angle that I will always love and miss. I hate that I couldn't be there to say my final goodbyes but maybe that's a good thing. I don't want to say goodbye to my uncle because it's not goodbye it's see you later uncle hank. I can't wait to talk to you and tell you everything in heaven one day. I miss you and love you!
