“ Dear Uncle Junebug,
Thank you for living in such an honorable, joy-filled way that reminds us how beautiful life can be. I've loved hearing about how you've touched the people around you and I'm grateful to call you Uncle. While we loved having you here, we also know you're in the best company with the other angels. Welcome home. Love you so much!

“ Junebug, I will miss our long conversations talking about the car races, trains (especially the Big Boy steam train) and Star Trek among so many other conversations. I will always remember our visit to Lulu's and Mama's restaurant. Love you forever.

“ My Dad, James Andrew Morrow, Jr. aka Junebug aka Lucky will be truly missed. I've heard nothing but wonderful things about my Dad. He was a very nice, kind-hearted, humble, loving, selfless, gentleman. Dad, I will always love you and I miss you! I know you will always be with your first grandson, Larry and I as you were when you were here in the flesh. I will miss our long phone conversations and the laughs we shared. Thank you for your service. I know you would want all of us to move on in our lives and take with us, pieces of you, even if it was a small lesson that you bar any part of. In true Trekkie fashion as you were and in your honor, we promise to Live Long and Prosper! 🙌

Special Delivery to Heaven to my oldest youngest brother. My dearest brother thanking each other for our service to the nation was the last thing, we got to say! The next day I found by God's grace you had completed your mission upon this earth. I thank God for allowing us to have been a part of your dash. I also thank God you were a part of our family. We had the parents we did, however long or short. The lessons we learned throughout our lives, leaves great deal of memories that we shared we will forever cherish. (I imagined the first time I had fried cabbage in Virginia which turned out to be a tasty treat. Your Legacy will continue to live on, as you become another special 🙌 angel watching over all.

“ To my slightly older cousin who is known to us as "Junebug" touched so many lives in so many wonderful ways. I rarely won a debate with him especially when discussing jazz. He like Pat Matheny and I challenge him with Chris Botti. Lol. He loved to tease me every chance he got even if he knew he was wrong. I miss my cousin dearly and pray he save me some of cousin Christine's collard greens. RIP while the clouds part and the sun makes a stunning entrance. Until then, all my love cousin and family. ❤️ Rachel Williams
