I'm lighting you a red candle bro b/c red represents power and confidence. You were the most ambitious and motivated friends I'd EVER had the honor of having. Regardless how seemingly difficult or near impossible a particular obstacle may have appeared, you rarely wavered. You exuded confidence to the point adversity brought you humor, and even if on the inside you were scared to death, no one could tell or sense it. I'm gonna miss you more than i think I'm ready to accept, and just driving by sum our old spots make me nauseous and apprehensive, but I keep telling myself your battle is finally over. And you've certainly earned some much vacation time! Just like when you were gone last year for a while, I pledge to be there for Queen D as much as humanly possible cuz I know you'd do the same 4 me. You will ALWAYS be in my heart and mind bro and EVERYTIME I got to the boat I promise to spin a "max-bet" for you with the 1st 20 I put in! Not that I don't already, but DAMN I'm gonna miss the eff outta you my ninja! Look out 4 all ya homies up there while you wait on us to join ya! I figgin love you so much more than I ever got the chance to show. Til next time my dude..... One luv

“ Jason was one of the greatest friend/man I have ever known. He had a huge heart and would do anything for his family and friends. Jason had a way to always put a smile on your face, make you laugh and if something crazy/silly was going on you knew Jason had some part in it. You could always go to Jason to talk about anything and a very loving man. There is so many memories I will cherish forever. I can say I am lucky and honored to have had him in my life. There was and never will be another Jason, he was one of a kind. My prayers and thoughts to his family, love you guys and thank you for sharing him with me and with so many others.
