“ Our big sister was full of energy and she lived life to the fullest. Fashion was one of her passions and she wore the finest in clothes, shoes, hand bags, jewelry, perfume. She was also a collector of black which she displayed throughout her home. Jeanette played tennis and continued to do so until her health began to decline. She was a lover of people and had a soft heart for those less fortunate. She was especially fond of children and her heart's desire was to one day be a grandmother and, after many years of patiently waiting, God blessed her with a granddaughter. Although we will miss Jeanette's presence, we are comforted in knowing that she is resting in perfect peace with the Lord and we can find joy in our many memories of her We won't say goodbye, just see you later.

Love you mjuch big sis!
