“ I want to start by letting all of Paul's family know how truly sorry I am for your loss. I know my condolences can't bring Paul back, but I pray that in time God can provide the Mungai family with strength and peace of mind. I didn't have a close relationship with Paul, but I have known him for a good part of my life. We went to Hazelwood West Highschool, graduated together, yet throughout all of high school I never managed to have a class with Paul. I ended up meeting Paul through a close friend of mine who became friends with him. I can't say enough how rare it is to meet a person like Paul. His presence is comforting, he is truly a pure soul and a very kind, authentic person. The second you meet Paul you can tell how great of a guy he is, his positive energy is felt everytime he is in the room. Our relationship continued at Mizzou, where I would see him from time to time on campus and have a short chat with him. What I feel right now is regret. I regret not making an effort to hang out with Paul more, to talk to him more to see how he was doing and to try to spend more time with him. Paul is an incredible individual and this news came as an absolute shock to me. Although we never had a close relationship, I am heartbroken that the world has taken such a beautiful soul, and I will forever live in regret at not making more of an effort to spend time with Paul. This heartbreaking news has really affected me. I intend to live my life keeping Paul in mind at all time by carrying his positive energy and his great heart with each day. I'm truly sorry, Paul will be missed but his impact on others and memory will live on forever.

“ Paul was one of the sweetest people I ever met. He lived above me last year in District Flats. Although we weren't super close friends, we talked every week and he was always pleasant and wonderful. He will be in my heart forever. Truly a rare soul and beautiful human from the inside out. My condolences to his family and friends at this time.
