

Phillip Scott Brown

October 13, 1968 - September 28, 2023

Phillip Scott Brown, 54, passed away peacefully on September 28, 2023, in St. Charles, MO, with his family by his side. He battled cancer for 5 years with a strong will that never faltered. Despite the many hardships he and his family faced, he stayed a fighter until the end.

Scott was born on October 13, 1968, to Milton Brown and Deborah Gaultney, and attended Collinsville High School in Collinsville, Illinois. In his adult years, he owned and operated Kindground Coffee House in Edwardsville, Illinois, and enjoyed fishing and cooking for his family, especially on Thanksgiving. From a young age, Scott developed a lifelong relationship with music, which led him to work as a sound man for many bands, where he met his loving wife, Amanda Gowen, who he later married on May 14, 2017. Scott was a wonderful husband and father, and looked forward to one day having grandchildren. He loved spending time with his nieces and nephews, and his family cherished the memories they made on countless vacations.

Scott was preceded in death by his mother, Deborah Gaultney. He was survived by his father, Milton Brown, his wife, Amanda Gowen, his son, Daniel Brown, and his step-daughter, Julia Edwards. Scott was an inspiration to all around him, showing strength in times of incredible hardship. He had a big heart, and his loved ones always came first, even before himself. He will be missed greatly by his family, and will live on forever in their hearts.

Services will be at Simple Church Tuesday,
October 3, 2023 with visitation from 3 -5 pm with the funeral service starting at 5 pm.

“ Forever remembered, for his services running behind the curtain's call to those filled with rhythmic thrills. I regret not getting to know him well, for the atmosphere every Sunday will no longer be the same anymore.

Thank you for being who you were.
