“ When remembering & thinking of my Beautiful friend, Sharon, I smile. She was so classy, sassy and full of life. She loved to travel & loved having a good time. Her beautiful smile and wittiness will truly be missed. Sending my love, hugs and prayers to her husband, Carl, daughters, Whitney & Kim & son, Carl Jr. May the memories you created with your Mom on yesterday comfort you on today. May you all find peace, strength and comfort in the arms of Jesus. Earth has no sorrow that Heaven can't heal. Love you all!❤️

“ I write to express my sincere condolence to Carl, Whitney and Kim with the passing of your wife and mother. My heart was deeply saddened upon learning of her transition. However, we take comfort in knowing that when believers in Christ die we are merely absent from the body and present with the Lord. To this end I rejoice as Sharon is with her Redemer; she is with the Father and Jesus Christ who alone saved her by grace through faith!

I am indeed grateful that God allowed our paths to cross; my life has been immeasurably blessed as a result of meeting Sharon. She had a vibrant spirit, an infectious smile, a witty sense of humor and was genuinely nice, kind and loving. All of my memories concerning Sharon Maul evidence her love for Jesus and her life anchored in His grace.

While serving as a staff pastor at VCOC, I would often say something about Sharon in my sermons. After Service she would always chide with me about using her in an illustration or joke and then she would say, "but I loved every moment of it"... and then we would laugh together. Precious memories...

Years ago I penned these lyrics:

"As we go through this life, one thing is certain- none of us can know which way the wind will blow, At times there will be sunshine, at times there will be rain, some times our lives will be filled with peace, some times it's filled with pain. But as we keep on living, and get a higher view, we will soon discover God's grace will get us through".

Be comforted in knowing that God's grace will get you through this hour of bereavement; take solace in knowing that Sharon is at the feet of Jesus.

May her memory be for a blessing!
